THE MINNESOTA FOOD IS MEDICINE SUMMIT

Across Minnesota, the connection between food, health, and community wellbeing has never been more urgent. Rising rates of chronic disease, persistent maternal health disparities, and increasing nutrition insecurity are placing growing pressure on healthcare systems and communities alike.

At the same time, Minnesota is home to innovative programs and strong cross-sector partnerships demonstrating how Food is Medicine can improve outcomes. To build on this momentum, Open Arms of Minnesota and Fairview are convening a Minnesota Food is Medicine Summit on Thursday, October 29 at Woodbury Central Park.

ATTENDEES

This solution-focused gathering will bring together approximately 250 leaders from healthcare, public health, community-based organizations, philanthropy, research, and government to align on the current landscape, share evidence and best practices, and identify clear paths to scale and sustain Food is Medicine efforts across the state.
